It took one day to turn Lydia Martin's life upside down, and it could take one person to help her fix it. The last person she expected to see again. But Lydia has been through enough, and she isn't sure if her wounded heart is ready to take a leap of faith again.

It's been years since Stiles Stilinski left Beacon Hills, and everything that came with it, behind. But when he returns for a short visit, he realized he was wrong believing that everything would be okay. Everything is different of what seventeen year old Stiles thought it would be his senior year when he left. Will Lydia let Stiles in? Or will she leave and forget about him just like he did Senior year?
