Water. What Cassi thought was a simple obsession with clean water has taken over her life.

When she orders a distiller online to replace the one smashed by her abusive boyfriend, she gets more than she bargained for. Enter a man with a badge, hunting a terrorist, and Cassi is his number one suspect. Not only is she struggling with her fixation on pure H₂O, she has to prove she's not the one he's looking for—only she kind of wishes she was. Before she knows it, Cassi is in over her head. Justice. Ray had everything, until a random crime ends badly and he's left to hold to his grief or make changes in his life. Charming his way into people's personal business—slapping on the cuffs as needed—gives him reason to get up in the morning. When he falls headfirst into another chance at love, he must take the plunge without hesitation or risk losing more than his heart. As the pair join hands, sparks fly as well as bullets, leaving Cassi and Ray to wonder if the universe could right itself. Will the past reach out and drown their chance for happiness?
