Going home is the last thing that Lacey Vaughn wants to do. In fact, she's been avoiding it for the better part of past five years. Her self-imposed exile comes to an abrupt end when she receives a summons from the Lord of House Vaughn. After all, he's not just the Barron of the East Coast, he's her father. But when his intentions are revealed, Lacey is forced to reconsider her sworn obedience to both House Vaughn and her own family. Mathias Hartford has the world on a string. At least, his little corner of it. He stays out of the way and in return, flies under the radar of the rest of his power-hungry family. The last thing either of them are looking for is to fall in love. So, when a secret, backdoor peace treaty is presented, Lacey and Mathias are forced to choose between an arranged marriage or the war of their families. Will they put aside their difference for the good of their own? Or rebel and bring about irreparable consequences on their own houses? ~~~ Once Upon a Hallow's Eve is the first in a brand new series of paranormal romances from Danielle Garrett. A magical blend of suspense, romance, and supernatural delight!
