In the remnants of a lost empire, seigneurs and ladies, sages and soldiers, assassins and usurpers come together in a time of sorrow. An enigmatic sect of assassins lurks in the shadow; the Circle of Sages is often wrong; a young prince tries to win back his throne; and an outstanding woman fight for her children, using both mind and sword. Amid tragedy and betrayal, allies and enemies, the fate of Jara's family hangs in a precarious balance, as many nobles covet her body and lands. His family dead in an ambush, Codrin, the legitimate heir to the Arenian throne, runs for his life into the wilderness. Trained to fight by a renegade from the Assassins Sect, he has only one friend left in the whole world - his sword. A chance encounter with Jara and her family, draws Codrin to Severin, a land threatened by Orban, the killer of Jara's husband. The Circle, a secret order created several hundred years ago to rebuilt the lost empire, is helping Orban, and Severin must fall. Filled with mystery, intrigue, romance and adventure, Errant is by turns taut medieval fantasy and touching love story, an irresistible read.
