Katie has been friends with Logan Anderson for four years, and they're closer now than ever. He might be a smart, funny, adorable billionaire, but after her work as a divorce attorney, she's just not interested in romance. But when she pretends to be his girlfriend for one weekend at the beach, everything starts to change. Logan isn't just her friend. He's also a very sexy man—a man she wants in a way she never imagined. If she can take a risk, she might find her best friend is also the love of her life. This story was originally published as part of the Billionaires on the Beach anthology.
