Chelice is one of the best choreographers in her city. Dance has always been her passion, and she aspires to work with big names in the music industry.

Chelice has had her share of relationship drama and is single by choice. After her last break up, she decided that taking a break from love was best for her.

Until she met and became friends with Illijah. The aspiring hip-hop artist that goes by Illi-J. He and Chelice became friends online and overtime they built a strong bond. They went from just chatting online, to talking on the phone every day, to spending most of their free time together. Neither one of them were looking for love, but deep feelings began to develop between them uncontrollably. Their friendship is tested when they cross the line and find themselves struggling to keep their feelings for each other in check. Illijah continues to juggle women, and Chelice continues to see other people, which cause drama between them. Chelice can't understand why Illijah chooses to keep juggling women when he knows that her love for him is deeper. Illijah hates to see Chelice with another man, although he isn't ready to make things official. Then, when Chelice thinks that she has a handle on things, Illijah does the unexpected.
