An Urban Romance/Drama Series (3-Book Series) Book One Three families, from three broken homes, and no fathers or male figures in their lives, trying to make their place in the world. Charmaine and Lamont are a working couple and they just moved in together. Charmaine is a hairdresser and Lamont works as an auto mechanic. Both of them have dreams of opening their own businesses one day, but Lamont can't seem to stay out of his bull-headed twin brother's drama... Trey is a young black man addicted to fast money, fast cars, and fast women, but he was raised in the church and his long-time friend Keyana has always been there for him. He wants to get his life right and get out the game, but he can't seem to resist the call of the streets. Until he and Keyana slip up one night and she ends up pregnant with his second child... Jay is a good church boy with a nice young girlfriend named Aisha. He's been driving regionally with his CDL and saving up money to give her the wedding of her dreams and put a down payment on the house she deserves. But, Jay has a secret--a secret that could shatter his entire world and everything he's worked so hard to earn over the years...
